D. Individual Authors (Guides to the literature on major figures)

Many major individuals have been written about in book series, but the series can be uneven.

Among more difficult authors, the volumes on Derrida by Nicholas Royle in the Routledge Critical Thinkers series and by Julian Wolfreys (Derrida: A Guide for the Perplexed, Continuum, 2007) are both outstanding, as is the volume by Stephen Morton in the Key Contemporary Thinkers series by Polity (which is stronger than Morton's volume on Spivak in the Routledge Critical Thinkers series). See also original writings by major figures (see references for further readings in first section above and reference works below) and the series of critical readers published by Blackwell, e.g., Althusser: A Critical Reader (1994), Derrida: A Critical Reader (1992), Fanon: A Critical Reader (1996), Foucault: A Critical Reader (1986), The Irigaray Reader (1991), The Kristeva Reader (1986), and Nietzsche: A Critical Reader (1995), among others. There are also useful volumes in the Routledge series, Thinking the Political (on Lyotard, Derrida, Lacan, Kristeva, Deleuze, etc.) as well as other series published by Routledge, Duke University, and other presses.

Critical Theory Bibliography:

Note: The electronic journal The Year's Work in Critical and Cultural Theory annually publishes a useful overview of new work in selected fields of critical theory: feminism, Marxisms/Post-Marxisms, colonial discourse/postcolonial theory, deconstruction, multiculturalism/race/ethnicity, psychoanalysis, continental philosophy, science, poststructuralism, etc.

For older works, see:

Contemporary Critical Theory: A Selected Bibliography, Donald G.

Marshall, Modern Language Association, 1993.
